UPRIGHT DONE RIGHT

The Elkmont Is An Innovative Upright Trailer Missing Something Important: About 1,500 Pounds.

The average weight of a 24-foot travel trailer is about 4,000 pounds.

The TrailManor Elkmont upright tips the scales at a slender 2,498 pounds.

That means you can tow the TrailManor Elkmont with the most popular minivans, crossovers, and SUVs. You don't have to go down in trailer size to accommodate a smaller vehicle. And, better yet, you don't have to buy a big, gas guzzling tow vehicle to get the space you want.

TrailManor does this with the same unique lightweight construction techniques perfected after 25 years of use on its innovative fold-down trailers. TrailManor's panelized design is strong and much, much lighter. It also gives you more room, more storage, and ultimately, a better camping experience.

Walls are made from lightweight insulating polystyrene sandwiched between aluminum for exceptional strength. We looked at ways to save weight throughout this unique trailer. There is no particle board or chipboard anywhere in the trailer. Even the floors and countertops are foam-filled. This costs more—but dramatically reduces towing weight.

Our engineers and stylists also took a close look inside the new upright, giving it remarkable luxury and amenities. And for 2010, we've added new floorplans—including the world's lightest bunkhouse.

There's a walk around bed, marble-look countertops, and woodgrain floors. Appliances include a full-sized refrigerator, three-burner stove, and microwave. Custom upholstery, maple cabinets, and custom window treatments add to the elegance. The L-shape sofa converts into a bed to accommodate more campers. Two front wardrobes add to the storage space, as does the spacious pantry. And if you prefer, you can choose a sofa bed option instead of a the queen bed for even more living space.

A 15" high definition TV is mounted to the wall, where it can be viewed from either the sofa and dinette or from the bedroom.

And the bathroom includes a tub and shower, plus your choice of a conventional or recirculating toilet. It's a whole new way of looking at an upright travel trailer.

But it's part of the TrailManor philosophy. Our owners have told us one of the things they like most about TrailManor is how easy we make camping—from towing to setup to relaxing in comfort.

Now we've accomplished for upright trailers what we've done for folding trailers—making each camping adventure relaxing and effortless from the moment you leave.

Take a good look at the TrailManor Elkmont. For years, we've specialized in building the world's lightest, easiest towing folding travel trailers. Now we're bringing these proven ideas to the world of uprights.

It's upright done right.
