RE: Choosing Our Next President

As time goes by, it's going to be more difficult than I thought at election time. My plan was that if I would pay attention to printed news, tv, radio commercials and talk shows, I would find the right person to be our next president.

After reading an article in the November 21st issue of The Wall Street Journal, I soon realized what really goes on in politics can be hard to digest and end up with the real truth. The Wall Street Journal article stated that Liz Mair and her group, The Trump Card LLC, were planning an anti-Trump effort. In fact, one of the group's memos said it would be pitching opposition research to media in early-voting states, as well as radio and television ads and web videos that attract media attention based on their "outrageousness and boundary-breaking or bizarre nature".

One possible ad would link Mr. Trump's views and style to a celebrity foe, Rosie O'Donnell, in hopes of provoking a reaction from Mr. Trump, according to the memo. Other possible tactics include fake pro-Trump ads that show him supporting socialized medicine, seizing property through eminent domain and taking other positions that stray from GOP orthodoxy; using a Trump impersonator to show him insulting people; and attacking his business record in "stark, nasty terms".

And the really sad part is that the goal, according to the memo, isn't to convert Mr. Trump's supporters into backing other candidates, but it is to dissuade them from voting altogether, especially in New Hampshire's influential first-in-the-nation primary.

At this time, my candidate selection has not yet been made, but to make the right choice it's important to know that there are people like Ms. Mair, in both parties, that will go to almost any length to keep the status quo.

By now it should be clear that if you are running a small business, are a member of the working class and middle class, or have been personally struggling to rise above the poverty line, the status quo has not worked for you for the past sixteen years.

When asked about Ms. Mair's campaign, Mr. Trump declined to respond in detail, but said through his spokeswoman Hope Hicks that Ms. Mair "worked for Scott Walker and lost her job- who can blame her?" FYI, before Trump, Carson and Fiorina entered the campaign, Scott Walker led the field for the GOP nomination and is no longer a presidential candidate.

If you don't like the status quo in car pricing, at all Bommarito Automotive Group locations, Black Friday pricing and Macy's gift cards will continue through Monday. Don't miss it!

Sincerely,

Frank J. Bommarito
