RE: Wow!! How About Debate #2

For over 80 million people it was like watching Houdini escape while chained to a watery grave or Nikolas Wallenda tightrope walk across the Grand Canyon with only a balance bar. Then this past week, it only got worse with more sex and WikiLeaks allegations.

So it is what it is and the big question is, how did we get to this point? Didn't we see the DNC and its powerful donors, choosing our Democratic candidate for us? Then we watched the RNC try to stop the people's choice, Donald Trump, who they knew was never going to be politically correct and they also knew he would be harmed badly when both parties started to sling the dirty political mud around. The DNC stopped Bernie Sanders but the RNC couldn't stop Donald Trump.

If the power brokers, high-powered donors and bias media owners were out of the picture we could be choosing between two terrific, successful politicians like Tim Kaine and Mike Pence, who are just two among many others who are qualified but will never get the opportunity to be President while the old guard and power donors control things.

Should the American voter get used to this situation or demand drastic changes to campaign financing, among other things?

Until that happens, we must look passed the scorched earth campaign we have all witnessed and cut through the clutter.

On November 8th, somehow we must forget that Donald Trump was more of a rascal than we ever dreamed and not quite the perfect business man he claimed to be. And then somehow we must forget that after 25 years with her personal influence on how our Government has been run, Hilary Clinton and the Democratic party must accept much of the responsibility that the world is on fire and the US is 20 trillion dollars in debt.

So let's make it simple for the moderator and sponsors of the October 19th debate. "We the People" only want to know each candidates plan to fix our major problems now, period.

With that approach, American voters will then see who the clear winner is and voter turnout will be at an all time high.

Be sure to watch the third and final debate on October 19th, it's critical.
