Awesome 4th of July Traditions

By: Brett & Kate McKay

Everyone has a healthy appreciation for positive traditions. Traditions add rhythm and texture to our lives, bind us together with others, give us something to look forward to, and simply provide a good deal of joy and satisfaction.

If you're looking for inspiration in creating an Independence Day to remember, below I share how I do the Fourth of July.

Hang the Flag

First thing in the morning, just put it up, think about your freedoms for a bit, and get started with the day.

Go to a Parade

Nothing like munching on a tasty pastry while listening to the float for a local bank blast "I'm Proud to Be an American" from their speakers. I love it.

Make Some Ice Cream

Another small 4th of July tradition in our family is making homemade ice cream. Here's the recipe.

Plain Vanilla Ice Cream

2 cups heavy cream (1 pint)
2 cups light cream (1 pint)
1 cup sugar
1 1/2 tsp. pure vanilla extract
1/8 tsp. salt

Pour cream directly into cream can. Add sugar, vanilla, and salt. Stir with a wooden spoon or plastic spatula until the sugar is dissolved. Churn until creamy.

Hit the Fireworks Stands

As a kid, I remember being overwhelmed by the selection. Black cats, jumping jacks, smoke bombs (especially the ones that look like grenades), and M-80s were my go-to fireworks. I'm a grown man now, but I'm still a sucker for a trip to the fireworks stand, and of course, blowing things up.

Go See a Blockbuster Movie

Fourth of July has historically been the day film companies release some of their biggest and most action-packed movies.

Light Up the Grill

Make burgers, dogs, brats, baked beans, potato salad, and other delicious summer delectables.

General Advice That Everyone Needs To Know About Traveling

by Mark Wang

Whether you are a novice or seasoned traveler, there are undoubtedly many decisions that you have to make in planning your vacation. However, with the proper advice and knowledge, it becomes much simpler to make your travel arrangements. This article provides useful tips and suggestions that can help you plan your travels.

You must plan ahead if you are going to fly. Major airports are in big cities much of the time, so getting through traffic and to your gate on time can be a challenge. Have your bags packed well in advance. Before your travel day, make sure all of your preparations are taken care of.

When flying on a plane, you should plan ahead because an airline won't always be able to meet your basic needs, even when the flight lasts for many hours. A flight is often more comfortable when you bring along comfort items; such as a blanket, a pillow or your own set of headphones. You should also think about bringing some snacks with you.

If traveling with children, keep a recent, color picture of them with you at all times, just in case they become lost. It can happen to even the most diligent parents. Easy access to a photograph of the child can facilitate any necessary search efforts if they get lost.

Travel can be a great way to educate your family members. Traveling is a great way to teach your family about other cultures around the world, as long as you take the correct safety precautions. The best way to foster tolerance for other cultures in your children is to spend time in other countries with them.

Taking a sleeping pill can make a red-eye flight much easier. Never take sleeping pills before your plane is up in the air, there may be a delay or some other unforeseen problem.

Try folding your clothes in innovative ways that will take up less space. This can free up some space for other things you will need.

When you want to maximize travel enjoyment, never forget about the weather. Before you settle on a destination, be sure to consider the influence that the weather can have on your trip. Research the weather forecast at your vacation spot. Weather can ruin even the most thought out plans, and you may even put yourself in a dangerous position if you are not paying close attention to it.

Traveling is quite a popular pastime that most people will participate in at some point in their lives. Information about travel can help you to enjoy the situation in a more relaxed manner. The tips presented in this article are going to come in handy sometime down the road.

THANK YOU!

 Before I visited Napa Jeep I felt reluctant, there's always some anxiety when buying a car and I knew I was upside down on my trade. I found my Jeep on the internet and was stressed about my trade in and getting an overall acceptable deal. Napa Jeep overcame my stress by being straight forward; really working to get a deal done I was comfortable with.
