ARE YOU GUILTY OF VEHICLE NEGLECT?

It's incredible how much we rely upon our vehicles and expect them to work reliably around the clock, yet we don't give much thought to the preventative maintenance that should be regularly performed.

Think about it. We simply expect our vehicles to be trouble-free — but what it comes down to is that automobiles are machines and no machine is completely free of maintenance. Have you ever bought a car, new or used, and then not even bothered to read the owner's manual to glean the manufacturer's suggestions for proper maintenance? Many of us are guilty of that, and the longer we ignore caring for our vehicles, the greater the chance we're going to wind up on the side of the road (at the most inopportune moment, of course) facing a greater repair expense than what we would've spent maintaining the vehicle in the first place.

If you care for your vehicle, it will return the favor — and your wallet, as well as your sanity, will thank you for it.

CAR CARE SURVEY

Auto service professionals agree that routine maintenance is the key to keeping vehicles running their best — safely and economically. Yet, many drivers fail to maintain even the most basic services.

A recent survey of auto owners by the Car Care Council found that:

- 54% had low tire pressure
- 38% had low or dirty engine oil
- 28% had inadequate cooling protection
- 19% needed new belts
- 16% had dirty air filters
- 10% had low or contaminated brake fluid

Those above statistics certainly help to explain why the United States' highways are littered with so many broken down vehicles. If you've ever seen a newer, nice looking vehicle abandoned on the side of the road and wondered if the owner maybe ran out of gas (why else would a late model vehicle be broken down?), now you know that the problem could have very well been the maintenance — or lack thereof.
